

ACADEMIC RESOURCES

at Pacific & Beyond

ASUOP NYT Subscription:

The New York Times is a news source that can help you stay up-to-date with the latest news, and can also help you get a general idea of what the latest research is in a variety of fields!

ASUOP offers a free NYT subscription for all students

Tutoring Center at the Library:

The University Library offers FREE TUTORING FOR ALL STUDENTS in a variety of classes and subjects! This includes a Writing Center, Math Hub, and a General Academic Tutoring Center. Tutoring is available either by appointment or walk-ins, depending on availability.

All tutoring services are located on the second floor of the library.

Office Hours with Your Professors:

Don't forget your professors are experts in what they're teaching you, and they have office hours for a reason! Always remember to go to office hours with your professors if you're struggling with coursework, or if you want to gain a better understanding of what is being taught.

University Library:

The library offers a vast physical and digital library for your research and leisure needs, and also offers research consultations for students interested in bettering their in-class research projects, or starting independent research projects!

OpenStax Textbooks:

An open educational resource by Rice University, OpenStax is a great resource for students looking to better understand their curriculum in easy-to-read language. OpenStax offers free textbooks and other resources in subjects ranging from intellectual property to chemistry.

Career Services Center:

For students who want or need some extra guidance, academic coaches are available to provide check-ins and advocate for students' academic success.

Academic Coaches are assigned based on major, to learn more scan the QR code

